The project depicts and explains the various aspects of the musical universe of this modern jazz trio, bringing back a unitary and dynamic image. It consists of fifteen original songs of various influences, eleven of which were composed by guitarist Guido Premuda and arranged by the group. Four other pieces are ascribed to the trio, and the remaining song is a tribute to the music of Andrea Morricone's cinema through the re-reading of one of his beautiful themes. Some of the tracks are embellished, made more full-bodied and tonally richer by the intervention of British musician Katherine Pigott's horn.
